The Adidas Story

“Impossible is Nothing”

Aina Blankson Story

“Imaginative Thinking”

Founder: German-born Adolf Dassler, nicknamed Adi, was an avid sportsman who spotted a gap in the market – the need for better shoes.

Vision: Adi’s vision was largely predicated on three guiding principles: Produce the best shoes; protect the athlete from injury; and Ensure product durability

Challenges: With the Second World War, seizure of factory by the military and bitter family feud, the company became highly fragmented which led to its eventual company split.

Branding: With Adi in sole charge, the word “Adidas” was coined and the company name was registered in 1949. A new logo was designed with the iconic three-stripe, creating a striking visual image that aimed to make his shoes stand out from the crowd.

Global Expansion: Adidas came up with a product innovation for every major sports event, dominating the world’s athletic shoe market.

Founder: Realizing the vacuum of a structured and depersonalized law firm in Africa, Nigerian born Kehinde Aina (Kenny or PK) chose to establish one that could compete with leading international firms. Reputed for his visionary leadership, determination, pursuit of excellence and selflessness, he approached his classmate, Harry Blankson and founded Aina Blankson.

Vision: Kenny’s vision to establish an international tier-one firm is predicated on three fundamental principles which include Exceptional Excellence; Professional Decorum; class and most of all, Integrity.

Challenges: With limited resources, the dream of Aina Blankson was birthed in December 1991 from a small one room office provided by a supposed mentor who shortly afterwards evicted him with a 30-day notice

Branding: The name Aina Blankson has become a global brand recognised for its professionalism, excellent services, decorum and class. With its iconic logo, Aina Blankson has become one of the most sought-after brands by high networth individuals, corporations, governments and international agencies.

Global Expansion: With Aina Blankson Global, a Swiss Verein, as the parent firm of Aina Blankson, it has afforded adequate global recognition by clients as a leading professional firm providing best-in-class services in legal, finance, tax, corporate, consulting and related services around the world.
